BIO

Isabelle started in Nook industries as an administrative assistant and now leads the charge of maintaining the Nook App Store's credibility and user-friendliness. She reads every review and critique; however, the expansion of the store has grown immensely, leading to delays in her work.

GOALS AND MOTIVATIONS

- Actionable Insights: Isabelle wants to know which apps are creating an unhappy user experience before the reviews are sent out
- Fairness: Some of the smaller, indie app developers tend to be misclassified
- Explainability: Tom Nook (CEO) wants an answer regarding why an app has been flagged
- Documentation: The last team did not leave any trace of what was completed

CHALLENGES

- Was told the prototype was good enough for launch; it was simply not cutting it
- Doesn't have a technical background, and the previous engineering team did not explain very clearly what the process is
- Is used to organization, and the previous team was quite the opposite
- Worries about the documentation style of the new team
